

NAVIGATING THE INFORMATION UNIVERSE

Cozy Season is Upon Us: What Are You Reading?

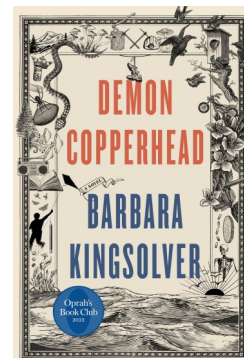

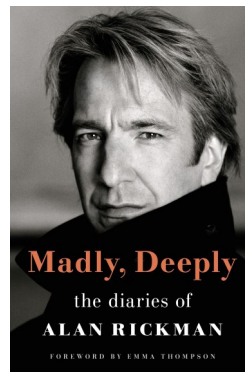

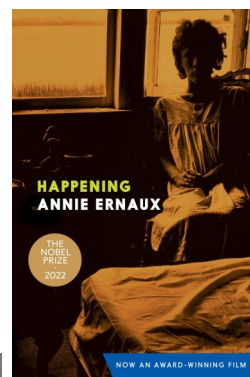

Cooler weather is on the horizon, with bits of warm days popped in, this is Ohio after all, and it is the perfect time to throw on an extra blanket and hunker down with a good book. The Gardner-Harvey Library posts a monthly list of new books added to our collection, and we highly recommend checking them out.

The New York Times also recently shared recommendations for new books including:

- Books by 2022 Nobel Prize in Literature winner French writer Annie Ernaux
- Books by the finalists for the National Book Award
- Their NYT Fall book preview
- Fifteen new books coming in October, including a new novel from Cormac McCarthy

If you have a suggestion of something to order, please use our "Tell GHL to Buy It" form, email Alan Kelley (kelleya@miamioh.edu), or drop by the library with your request. And pass your general suggestions or comments about the collection to us in those same ways.

Describing the View

As we share a range of pictures within our newsletter, including autumn leaves, books, movies, and video game covers, we want to highlight the importance of describing images within your digital files with full descriptions or alt text.

What is the difference between descriptions and alt text? The alt text option provides details about what is in an image, including text or basic essential details. Whereas an image description gives more detail beyond the alt text. For details on how to write both, check out <https://www.perkins.org/resource/how-write-alt-text-and-image-descriptions-visually-impaired/>

Sharing is Caring

Our Care Cabinet can now be found in the GHL Lounge. It offers free supplies for anyone who is in need.

- Toothbrushes and toothpaste
- Hair combs and hair ties
- Deodorant
- Bodywash and more.

Donations are welcome. Contact Jennifer Hicks (hicksjl2@miamioh.edu) with questions.
